Rescheed, That our representatives in the national Congress be requested to vote for an appropriation to encourage and enable the dissatisfied element of our colored population to emigrate to the Republican States of the North, where they may enjoy their rights and be the receptents of a most hearty sympathy and the South be relieved of a fearful strain upon our political system.

Mr. Magruder asked that the paper be placed on the calendar. In urging this action he spoke in substance as follows:
This resolution has a threefold object in

To show the satisfied element of our 1. To show the satisfied element of our colored population that we are willing to have them in our midst and to give them all the rights necessary to their happiness and success; and to the dissatisfied element that we are equally willing to get rid of them, and to help them to go where they will have the sympathy and rights for which they clamor.

2. To show the Republican party of the New York we have the sympathy and rights for which they clamor.

enough of delay; plenty of trifling. The moment is at hand for a vigorous movement. Whether it should originate with the society, the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce, or the people at large is not clear; nor is it plain whether the better course will be to attempt to raise the funds by individual effort or by a new appeal to the Board of Aldermen.

The expressions of business men published in yesterday's issue were emphatic enough to show what is the judgment of the thoughtful and practical people of the community; and here are more of the same sort, pling argument upon argument to demonstate that for a paltry $40,000 Richmond cannot afford to allow her reputation for enterprise and public spirit to be biasted.

JUSTICE TO THE STOCKHOLDERS.

Mr. Everett Waddey:

In my opinion the people who subscribed and paid in hard-earned cash for the stock of the "Virginia State Agricultural and Mechanical Society" are entitled to more consideration than is usually accorded them when the question of the disposition of the property or the payment of the debts of the society is the subject of discussion. Of the 18,000 adult male inhabitants of the city of Richmond considerably less than 500 subscribed to the stock of the society, when every method of persuasion and argument that could be devised was used to induce our citizens to be unusually liberal in the support of an enterprise which it was hoped would accomplish great things for our community.

Those who came up and paid for the stock and male the Exposition a possi-billity should not now be set aside when the property which the society holds is ample to pay off its debt and its stock and leave a balance upon which to start anew the Agricultural Society of Virginia should it be decided that it has not outlived its period of usefulness.

For the city to issue its bonds and pay the debts of the society, taking a mortagage upon the entire property, would be practically for the city to acquire in perpetuty this valuable asset of the society for about $45,000, and while this would undoubtedly be a grand thing for the city at large it would lack a great deal of being justice to the stockholders.

Our people are accused of lack of enterprise, but it is hardly to be wondered at when the course which it is proposed to pursue in its public enterprises amounts to but little less than confiscation of the money which those who become even shightly imbued with public spirit are willing to hazard but do not feel quite able to make a gift of.

The proper thing to do, in my humble judgment, is to get the General Assembly to pass an act which will enable the society to sell its property, pay its floating debt and all cash subscriptions to its stock, and reinvest the remainder for the purpose for which the society was organized. Do this and those gentlemen who are anxious to show their patriotic enthusiasm can have the pleasure of doing it entirely at their own expense, as they need never ask for the payment of their stock and those who do not feel able to make a gift of what they hold may have what is only justice done

A Big Blaze and Several Thousand Bollars' the Loss in Manchester.

Gary's tobacco-factory in Manchester was destroyed by fire last night.

The fire was discovered about 9:30 o'clock and an hour later the large structure had been razed to the ground. The building burned rapidly and being fall the bright light from the flames attracted attention in all parts of Richmond and Manchester and many people thought one half of the latter city was being consumed.

The loss was estimated last night all the way from $5,000 to $7,000, but the former figure is probably nearer right. It is understood that the loss is very nearly covered by insurance.

Card to the Public.

The Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, of St. Louis, has published a card, which is such a perversion of the truth that we deem it our duty to unmask this tissue of falsehoods. We herewith give the following facts:

In 1878 at the World's Exposition at Paris nearly all of the large breweries of the United States were represented competing for awards, including the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association.

The "Grand Prize" was granted to the Bergner & Engel Brewing Company by the International Jury and to no other brewing company in the United States.

Since then the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association has frequently advertised "Highest Award received at Paris in 1878!" and "Highest Award received at Paris in 1878!" and "Highest Award received at Paris in 1878!" and "Highest Awards wherever exhibited!" although knowing full well that these statements were false and that they had no claim to these great distinctions. Let the public apply the proper term to their actions.

Let the public apply the proper term to their actions.

During the recent Paris Exposition the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association had under the care of the United States Government officials a small collection of their bottled beer, but did not enter for competition, we presume, still smarting under former defeats.

Their assertion that at the late Paris Exposition there was no competing tests is again a fabrication and a falsehood, issued to deceive the public. There was a competing test by the International Jury, of which the largest French and other European Brewers were members. We only name:

Monsieur Tourtel, Tantonville (Naney), France.

France, Monsieur Cirier-Pavard, St. Germain,

Monsieur Cirier-Pavard, St. Germain, France.
And of this fact the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association is fully aware. We refer to the "Official List of Awards to American Exhibitors," issued by the United States Commissioner-General, Group VII. Class 73. Section 3.
That the Berner & Engel Brewing Company again received the "Grand Prize," and not, as stated, the "Gold Medal," like some competitors, is a well-known fact and published by us some time ago. [Seo Official List.] The Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association being again distanced by us, their wrath seems to know no bounds, and the result—indulgence in wholesale prevarication.

Their Aid in Good Works.

Last night at 8 o'clock about fifty persons, half of whom were the wives and daughters of the operatives of the Richmond Locomotive- and Machine-Works, met at Pizzini's parlors. The object was to form a ladies aid society to the present beneficial society of the locomotive-works to act as an auxiliary in giving help to the members and to strangers, many of the latter often being reduced to want after arriving here and before being put to work.

The mesting was delayed for nearly an hour by the non-arrival of Mr. A. R. Raynal, the superintendent of the works and originator of the society, who had been called to Washington on business but was momentarily expected to 'return. During the interval the assembly was entertained with several songs by Mr. John Joyce and soles on the cornet by Breardon.

Mr. Raynal having arrived, Mr. James Creatner, of the Beneficial Society, called the audience to forder, and Mr. W. C. Ammons acted as secretary.

Mr. John Chappel offered a plan of organization, which was read and approved. Upon motion Mr. Raynal was invited to make an address, which he did in an effective manner, showing the great need of such an organization as was proposed.

The representatives from the Committees on Streets and Electric Light opposed the consolidation.

Mr. Creashaw gave his views briefly. He thought it would be detrimental to the interests of the city to confer upon the company the powers contemplated. He announced that the City Engineer did not believe that any good could come from such a combination and that Colonel Cutshaw would have been present to explain why this bill should be rejected had he not had a very important engagement elsewhere.

Mr. Campbell did not think the interests of the city would be endangered by allowing the consolidation of the roads and electric-light plants under a bill in which the rights of the city are so carefully guarded as in the measure under considera-

The friends of the bill stated that as the ownership of the railway and electric property were already in the same hands a consolidation could not work any injury, but would beneat the public by securing greater efficiency of management and furmishing the only means (namely, by the sale of bonds under a consolidated mortage) of raising the large anount of money consolidate under existing legislation, which gives much broader powers than were asked under the present bill, and which powers are surrendered under one of the amendments proposed by the Council committee; that the amendments proposed to the bill by the committee from the Council amply protected every interest of the city and secured a consolidation under a bill in which the rights of the city were carefully guarded instead of under existing legislation in which there was no such guard; that the amendments proposed by the Council committee had been accepted by the friends of the measure upon the assurance that if they accepted them the bill would be satisfactory to the city authorities, and that after they had so acted upon the faith of assurances given by the committee which had been intrusted by the City Council with authority in the premises, they had not expected opposition from any quarter, especially as they had been given to understand that the amendments to the bill were satisfactory to the measure in the Streets and Light Committees, but that as further time was requested they had no desire to press the measure in the face of any reasonable request for further time for its due consideration.

At half-past 7 o'clock yesterday morning Colonel W. E. Cutshaw and Mies Margaret Morton were married at the Second Presbyterian church.

Rev. Dr. Hoge officiated.

The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of friends and relatives of the bride and groom. Among those present were several city officials and many of the members of the City Council.

The bride entered upon the arm of her nephew, Mr. Tucker Eggleston, and was met at the chancel by the groom, with his best man, Mr. Lewis D. Crenshaw. The ushers were Messrs. P. P. Taliaferro and W. Cary Sheppard. The bride wore a handsome gray broadcloth costume, with hat and gloves to match, and carried a handsome bouquet of La France rose.

Mr. and Mrs. Cutshaw left on the 8 o'clock train for Old Point.

The groom is the well-known and popular City Engineer, of Richmond. The bride is an accomptished lady, and a daughter of the late Basil S, Morton.

Davis Meeting.

It was positively decided yesterday that Speaker Cardwell will preside at the Davis memorial meeting to be held at the Academy Saturday night under the auspices of the General Assembly, and introduce United States Senator John W. Daniel, who will deliver the address on the "Life and Character of the Late President of the Confederate States of America."

Governor McKinney, Lieutenant-Governor Tyler, Attorney-General Scott, and other State officials, members of the General Assembly, judges of the Supreme Court of Appeals, Mayor Ellyson, members of the City Council, and other State and city dignitaries will occupy special scats either on the stage or in the orchestra-chairs near the front.

As many tickets as there are seats in the hall will be issued, and after the guests to be invited have been supplied the remainder will be apportioned among their friends. The members will probably receive about four tickets each besides those admitting them to the stage.

Prior to 8 o'clock admission can only be obtained by tickets, but at that hour the doors will be thrown open to the public and only a few special seats will be reserved. Of course the Academy will be reserved, the same would be the case if it were three times as large as it is.
